WHO ARE THE EDITORS?

Our good friends, the editors of Nashville Tennessean and American, are accomplished journalists and able writers, and they may know the best methods to use in their efforts to influence the race for United States Senator, but as one of the newspapers in the State which would like to see a campaign in which the issues are thoroughly presented and appreciated by the voters of the State we must express regret that our contemporary insists on making an issue out of whether or not Maj. E. B. Stahlman is a loyal American citizen.

Even if there were some question as to the Major's loyalty, what has that got to do with the Senatorial election? It goes without saying that the Major has pronounced views on who should be elected Senator. He always has on every question. His paper is outspoken.

There is a large number of people in Tennessee who do not think he is supporting the right candidate. But certainly Tennesseans are not going to be controlled in their voting by the fact that any particular newspaper supports any particular candidate. It is putting the campaign on too low a plane to lay so much stress upon the newspaper support given any candidate.

There is a tendency in the midst of war for people to continue public servants in office. It is rather difficult on that account to direct public attention to the questions involved in political campaigns. It will add to the difficulty if the fight between the Nashville newspapers is brought to the front. It isn't the sort of campaign that Tennesseans will welcome. Judge Shields has been in office for the past five years. He must be measured in accordance with the record he made during that period and previously.

As for Major Stahlman's loyalty we have expressed ourselves before. He is one of those millions of our citizens who was born in Germany. He has relatives there. No doubt the declaration of war by the United States against his native land tore his heart strings, as it has done those of all people of that nativity here. But he is an old man and has lived in the United States since his youth. He has been in public life a long time, and while much that he has said and done are subjects of controversy, no one ever seriously questioned his love of this country, and we do not believe this question would be raised now if he weren't active in his support of his candidate in this Senatorial race.

The News has agreed with the Tennessean and American in most matters of State politics, and we have the highest regard for all connected with it and great admiration for the candidate it supports, but in the interest of our good State, we do not think it well that these matters be raised at the present time.—Chattanooga News.

SAVINGS DEPARTMENT

The strength of the Nation lies in the thrift of its people.

The savers, building up their independence little by little, are the foundation.

If you would share the benefits of a prosperous Nation, you should save and deposit regularly a definite portion of your earnings.

Whatever your motive in saving—to benefit others or yourself—the advantages derived far outweigh the effort required to become a consistent and persistent saver.
